Legend

-  Value was redacted by the Agency of Education to protect identifying information
- xx%* Percentage of free and reduced price students is estimated for schools operating the Community Eligibility Provision (the applications)
- Schools with Universal School Meals though an existing program or Provision 2)
- Schools with Universal Breakfast through Provision 2

All data is from the 2019-20 school year.

Important Notes About CEP: Schools with 40% or more of their students (qualifying for free meals through another program, such as 3SquareVT to submit a meal application) may operate the Community Eligibility Provision. In Vermont, nearly every single school eligible for CEP was already operating prior to the pandemic. In these schools, meal applications are not collected and the percentage of students eligible for free school meals is calculated using the program. The percentage listed in this table indicates the percentage of meals reimbursed by the USDA. The rest of the meals are only partially reimbursed (the "paid" rate), and the school district must cover the remainder of the "rate" meals. Districts can "bundle" schools together to help schools with certification rates lower than 40% become eligible for CEP.

Important Notes About % and # of Free and Reduced-Price Eligible / Students: School districts include higher- and lower-income communities. In school there are food insecure students, and they are harder to serve in a meal program rules when there are fewer of them in a given school. For example, for low income students in higher income schools, because they stand out when fewer students use the "hot lunch" line. Even in the highest income schools there are many low income students. Also note that this table only counts students in school meal programs or in 3SquaresVT. This number is lower than the number of students who live in households at or below 185% of the Federal Poverty Line (Vermont's definition of being economically disadvantaged). A Universal Declaration Form would let us accurately count the true number of economically disadvantaged students in each district. Right now, we don't actually know the number is.

This spreadsheet was prepared by Tim Morgan, Child Nutrition & Program Manager at Hunger Free Vermont. tmorgan@hungerfreevt.org / (802) 333-0400. The data used in this table was provided by the Vermont Agency of Education in response to requests. Information provided to the House Committee on Education.
